

Colin K. Dunn

Colin Dunn is a top-rated senior trainer and consultant based in Washington, DC, who specializes in leadership, performance management, coaching, teambuilding, and communication skills. He has more than 20 years of experience and has trained and coached thousands of professionals. Colin has designed and delivered workshops in many areas, to include Strategic Leadership, Information Strategies, Knowledge Management, Team Leadership, Change Management, Executive Communication, Business Writing, Coaching and Presentation Skills.

Colin's major clients cover a variety of industries and have included CNN, US Department of Transportation, National Defense University, Ukrainian Ministry of Defense, US Army, Southern Company, Franklin-Covey, and SouthTrust Bank. Colin also does consulting work focusing on the areas of strategic planning and strategic communications.

He has a B.S. in Engineering (United States Military Academy at West Point), an M.A. in Writing (University of Iowa), an M.A. in National Security Studies (Naval War College), and an M.B.A. in Business Management (Salve Regina College). His professional associations include the American Management Association, the International Association of Business Communicators, and Franklin-Covey.

Colin served for 30 years as a US Army officer with highlights that include Five years as a college professor (Professor of Behavioral Sciences, Industrial College of the Armed Forces, National Defense University, and Associate Professor, Department of English, West Point, Eight years in command of various organizations (Troop Commander, American Forces Network; Artillery Battalion Commander; Battery Commander), Secretary of Defense Fellow, CNN, Atlanta, GA, Senior Trainer, Combat Maneuver Training Center (trained the peacekeeping forces in Bosnia), Magazine Editor (Field Artillery Journal) and security and logistics leadership positions.